KIHAVAH TRAVEL NOTES FOR A SEAMLESS JOURNEY

Landscape

People

The Maldivian people descended from ancient seafaring settlers from across the Indian Ocean trading route, a diverse blend of South Asians and Muslim Arabs. While the predominant language is Dhivehi, English is understood by most.

Weather

With year-round sunshine and a tropical climate, temperatures in the Maldives range from 24°C (75°F) to 33°C (91°F) throughout the year.

Currency

The national currency is the rufiyaa, with the exchange rate fluctuating approximately MVR 10 - 15 to the US dollar. Changing money is best done in Male, and ATMs are available throughout the capital city.

Resorts, however, use US dollars. Major credit cards are also widely accepted.

Arrival

Visitors to the Maldives automatically qualify for a 30-day visa on arrival provided they have a valid travel document, return ticket and confirmed resort reservation.

Malé International Airport is served by a wide array of flights from major airports in Asia, as well as an increasing number of charters from Europe. Our airport representative will meet you upon arrival for the 35-minute seaplane flight to Anantara Kihavah Villas

It is illegal to carry alcohol in any form through Malé International Airport.

Exploration

Venture out for exploratory journeys to untouched islands in a private yacht or luxury speedboat. Soar to new heights with a distinctly Maldivian seaplane. Our resort staff are more than happy to arrange any excursions and transfer arrangements.
